

Amicus POS provided Simone Logue with the POS system they required to keep up with their regularly changing products and prices!

Simone Logue has been catering to the food needs of Sydney for over 13 years. They provide complete, freshly cooked home style meals or the essential course to compliment a meal. As well as selling direct, Simone Logue offer a range of corporate and event catering options and have experience catering for large organisations such as Qantas right down to the smaller local bars and pubs.

"I really liked how easy it was to change the prices for a large number of products."

Simone Logue

- ◇ A catering business specialising in home style cooking.
- ◇ Catering in Sydney for over 13 years.
- ◇ A wide variety of clients from Qantas to local pubs.

The Simone Logue staff comes up with a new menu depending on the ingredients available fresh from the markets and what is in season. Due to the ever changing menu and the number of catering services provided by Simone Logue, they required a point of sale system that could manage a variety of products and alter product information quickly and easily. As ingredients become harder to source the price must be altered accordingly.

Simmons Logue pride themselves on their customer service. The point of sale system they selected had to not only facilitate sales but had to help Simmons Logue deliver the customer service that had come to be expected of them. Amicus POS helped to deliver this level of customer service by allowing customer information and orders to be completed more accurately, to help lower and track staff mistakes and by providing staff with daily sales reports to help tailor the menu the following day.

“Amicus provides us with a means to track our staff mistakes, it provides us with daily sales information, helps us to be more accurate with our orders and increases our customer service.”

Why Choose Amicus Hospitality?

Highly simplified sales process, with optional touch screens, maximises staff efficiency.

Keeps tight control of inventory and determine shrinkage quickly.

Know important product details.

Centralised pricing and product databases allowing for simple and quick changes to pricing or product information.

Completely scalable for sites and businesses of any size and hardware requirement.

Get vital information in real-time.

But the thing that really attracted Simmons Logue to Amicus POS was the ease at which Amicus could be set up and how the software was so user friendly. The staff had experienced extremely long set up times with their previous point of sale software so when the friendly staff at Neotechnology were able to set up the whole Amicus system in a single day they were happily surprised.

“The value of the Amicus system really spoke for itself! It was very user friendly and easy to set up. Our old system took a really long time to set up where as I could set Amicus up in under a day.”
